

Founded by Jennifer Labit, the Founder and CEO of Cotton Babies, Share the Love is a national program that distributes cloth diapers to families in need. The program design provides a consistent, scalable framework that ensures a long-term support structure to local communities.

Through local partnerships, Share the Love has been able to open more than 120 host sites across the country. Each Share the Love host site is run by a volunteer who coordinates all area outreach efforts, including events, collection of cloth diaper donations, as well as distribution of cloth diaper loans to qualifying families in their local area.

As a member of the NDBN please, visit <http://www.cottonbabieslove.com/locations/> to connect with the Share the Love host site nearest you. We welcome referrals of clients who are considering the use of cloth diapers.

If there is not currently a Share the Love host site in your area, you are invited to apply to open a host site.

A Share the Love host site can be run in conjunction with an existing NDBN diaper bank to offer cloth diapers as an option to clients.

Every host site is supported by the national Share the Love program and will receive materials for their location, including:

- Brochures and handouts
- Toolkits
- Information and statistics
- Training
- Share the Love email address

By partnering with a Share the Love host site, you are bringing invaluable resources to struggling families. Fill out the form at: <http://www.cottonbabieslove.com/join-in/#become-a-host> to open your volunteer host site today.
